

PATRICK STILLMAN

Your Lib Dem Candidate for Holborn & St Pancras

Dear Neighbour,

I wanted to introduce myself. I'm Patrick Stillman, the Liberal Democrat candidate for the Holborn & St Pancras Parliamentary by-election.

I'm standing because Camden is my home. I've lived here for many years, and currently represent my local area as a councillor. I've had the privilege of working alongside residents on the issues that affect them every day and, just as importantly, listening to what they need from their local representatives.

Housing is one of my top priorities. After the Housing Ombudsman exposed serious failings in Camden's repairs service, I worked with my Liberal Democrat colleagues to demand action. Camden has since introduced a new repairs policy, with clearer standards and response times.

That's the difference local representation can make: listening to residents, standing up for them, and turning concerns into action.

Over the coming weeks, I'll be out across Holborn & St Pancras, knocking on doors, meeting community groups and listening to residents. I want to hear from you: what is working, what needs to change, and what you want from your next Member of Parliament.

I won't pretend we'll agree on everything. But I do believe that politics works best when people feel listened to, taken seriously and properly represented by someone who knows the area and is accountable to the people who live here.

I hope to meet you during the campaign and hear your views.

With best wishes,

Patrick Stillman

Liberal Democrat Candidate for Holborn & St Pancras

P.S. This by-election is an opportunity to choose a local champion who will put the people of Holborn & St Pancras first. On October 8th, I hope you'll vote for a stronger local voice in Parliament.
